THE LOUISIANA LOTTERY SWINDLE.

Arrest of Several Ticket Dealers in New York—Plan of the Scheme and How Much its Managers Make by It.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

NEW YORK, Nov 12—The panic among dealers in lottery tickets here continues the arrests of the past two days being followed up by proceedings calculated to cause dismay in the ranks of the speculators. The openness and audacity with which lottery people have conducted their business have attracted very general attention from law-abiding citizens. Three arrests were made yesterday including Frank Noon, agent of M Dauphin, of New Orleans, representing the Louisiana lottery, of which M A Dauphin is principal in New Orleans. The Times says that Dauphin states in advertisements in some daily papers that all of the 100 000 tickets issued in each monthly scheme are sold before the drawing takes place. This if true, makes the gross receipt of $200 000 month out of which they claim to distribute $110 000 in prizes, leaving $90 000 to pay running expenses, including advertising rents salaries, printing and postage. This in the opinion of men who know a great deal about the business, leaves a monthly margin of profit amounting to from $35 000 to $40 000 to be divided between four or five persons and giving each of them an income of about $100,000 yearly. It is said that seven-eighths of the tickets are now sold in this city and state and as a consequence about $175 000 a month is paid by New York for the pleasure, profit and privilege of indulging in this little game of the Louisiana company. They are said to have been driven, to seek a new market for their tickets in the east because they had about exhausted the pecuniary resources of the people of Louisiana.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Bullion for the Mints.

WASHINGTON, Nov 12—The treasury department to-day purchased 360 000 ounces of fine silver for the Philadelphia and San Francisco mints. Five hundred and fifty-two thousand ounces of standard gold bullion, being a portion of that received from Europe, was to-day ordered by the treasury department from the assay office in New York to the Philadelphia mint for coinage into gold coins. The value of this bullion is about $10,250 000. The director of the mint said to-day that until further orders the coin made of gold by the United States mints will be confined to eagles and half eagles

Stanhope Speaks.

The Sheffield Daily Telegraph reports Ed ward Stanhope under secretary of state for India, as saying during a speech at Horncastle, that parliament might last till this time next year, but in all probability it was very near its end and he took the opportunity of advising his hearers to prepare for an election at an early date

Notable Death.

Alfonso's Wedding.

MADRID, Nov 12—Preparations have been begun for the reception of the Arch Duchess Maria Christina at railway stations on the way to Madrid. There will be a great military display at Irun on the frontier by the army occupying the Basque provinces under Gen Quesada. The cortes will suspend its sitting for ten days during the marriage festivities.

"The Devil was Sick," Etc.

BALTIMORE Nov 6—A Washington correspondent of the Sun writes. Advices received here from democratic leaders of high national repute especially from southern public men leave no doubt that a broadly national and conservative course will characterize the democratic policy the coming winter. Zealots will be made to take back seats. Passionate declarations, tropical rhetoric and sectional recrimination will be severely sat down upon. Republicans will be furnished with no more campaign thunder in the form of utterances of excited orators addressing backwoods audiences at home rather than the intelligence of congress and the country. The above sentiments are [illegible] of the Bayard boom. A systematic programme has been in preparation [illegible] in the southern states to secure their [illegible] for Bayard in the coming democratic convention, and the result of the New York election will augment the movement greatly

GRANT AT CHICAGO.

A Splendid Reception, City Gaily Decorated Along the Line of March

Grand Procession Composed of Distinguished Persons and Organizations—Speech by the Mayor and Reply by General Grant

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

[illegible] of the Tennessee began its [illegible] at headquarters in the Palmer House [illegible] Kong informed the [illegible] city could act as [illegible] Grant and follow when [illegible] procession. Owing to [illegible] short time left for arrangements [illegible] o'clock and the rest [illegible] seat was taken [illegible] the procession

The principal feature of the [illegible] reception of Grant by the citizens of Chicago and the Army of the Tennessee. In this reception all classes participate, so that the affair is devoid of political significance. This was distinctly understood before the democrats and Illinois National Guard would consent to take part. Republicans who oppose a third term for Grant for the presidency in partic pating are doing honor to a great soldier and distinguished citizen. An address of welcome will be made by Mayor Harrison during the afternoon

The streets along the line of march are profusely decorated with emblems of welcome and of congratulation. As no arches were erected there is little to call for especial mention where all are about equally meritorious as to design. The newspaper offices generally have done fine work with flags bunting and evergreens. The theaters are also noticeably artistic. Scarcely a building along the line of march lacks some sort of decoration. The train from Galena bearing Gen Grant arrived at Park row on the south side promptly at 1 o clock. At this time the rain was falling heavily but in a few minutes the clouds lifted and the sun shone brightly. Gen Grant alighted with his party from the special car of President Ackerman of the Illinois Central railroad and taking a seat in a carriage provided for him the procession at once moved in the following order

FIRST DIVISION

The procession moved in the following direction. From Park Row north on Michigan avenue to Washington street, west to State north to Lake west to Clark south to Washington, First to Franklin, south to Monroe east to LaSalle north to Madison east to Dearborn south to Adams, west to Clark south to Van Buren east to State north to Madison east to Wabash avenue and south on Wabash avenue until dismissed. Gen Grant left the procession at the Palmer House and reviewed it from a temporary balcony. It was of great length requiring over two hours to pass a given point. There was a large and appreciative crowd along the whole line of march which cheered notable members and organizations of the procession, but gave their loudest applause to Gens Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. After the review Gen Grant was formally welcomed by Mayor Harrison, who spoke in the rotunda of the Palmer House. The mayor welcomed him as one of the most renowned of American citizens whose journey round the world has been watched with feelings of gratification that his passport was simply that of an American citizen. He alluded to the services of Gen Grant during the late war to his generosity toward Gen Lee and to his elevation to the presidency. He said

Sir You have served your country nobly and the country has honored you grandly. Like the immortal Washington you rose from the lower walks of life and passed through all military grades until you commanded its victorious armies. Like him you filled the office of president two long terms and when the two terms were over was offered a crown, but preferred immortality and fame to temporary power. He returned to private life. He lives in the hearts of his people and all time will call him his country's father. You too sir when your two terms were over obeyed that part of your country's unwritten traditions hallowed by the immortal example of Washington, and you too retired and you too sir, live and will live forever in your countrymen's hearts. Sir in the name of Chicago and its people I prophesy that when time shall have grown old when the page of history shall become dim by the side of the great exemplar who has gone before your name and statue will be placed by the side of Washington [illegible] Jefferson and Jackson and the immortal Lincoln. Long live the name of Grant.

The speech was applauded heartily. Gen Grant said in reply

Mr Mayor and Gentlemen of the Committee of Reception of Chicago. I feel very much honored by the welcome which I am receiving at your hands to-day. I feel highly honored by the pledge of welcome which has been uttered by your worthy mayor which is something so personal to myself it would be hardly in good taste for me to respond to the language of it and it leaves me therefore nothing for me to do but to convey my thanks to this committee of citizens of this city for the hearty reception which they have given me. To his one allusion of my reception abroad I will say that in every case I felt that it was a tribute to our own country. I will say further that our country stands [illegible] in the estimation of European and Eastern nations from what it did a quarter of a century ago. An American citizen is regarded in a different light from the American citizen of a quarter of a century ago. At that time it was felt that we had no nation, it was merely a confederation of states tied together by a rope of sand and would give way upon the slightest friction. They have found out that it was a grand mistake. They know we have now a nation, that we are a nation of strong, intelligent and brave people capable of [illegible] and knowing our rights and [illegible] occasions to maintain them against either a domestic or foreign foe.

There is a deep seated impression that Kearney's threats are allegorical in their nature as he testified on a previous occasion when placed on trial for incendiary utterances

THE SKAGIT MINES

Splendid Report from Mr Thibert, an Expert Miner, Just from the Diggings

Results of His Prospecting and of the Work of Others—The Route to the Mines and the Chances for a Rush Next Season.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN]

SEATTLE, Nov 12—Mitchell Thibert of this city an old miner of many years experience and for the past six years engaged in mining operations in Cassiar left here three weeks ago for the newly discovered Skagit gold mines. Being an expert in this line his return has been awaited with great interest by many interested parties here who are generally disposed to accept his report on the mines as conclusive. Mr Thibert arrived here this morning and I was interviewed by your correspondent. He states that his party were engaged six days in poling up the Skagit river from Mount Vernon to the head of canoe navigation from thence two and a half days making the trip overland to the diggings packing from 75 to 100 pounds to the man over a very difficult foot trail, though not so bad as has been represented. At the time he left but little work was being done claim holders generally waiting for the water to go down. On Butcher claim a wing dam is being constructed for the purpose of draining the creek bed. The Boren claim has been worked down to bedrock, and found rich. Mr Thibert prospected eight pans on top gravel, from which he obtained thirty three cents. This he states, is much richer than any top gravel found even in Cassiar. He also prospected five pans on rim rock from which he obtained 10 cents. Other parties are making $5 per day panning top gravel. Most of the claims will be very hard to open, bedrock in many places being 12 to 20 feet below the surface. Claims are being located very fast. On claims already open, work will be continued till the first of December or later. As a general thing however, operations will be suspended till spring. On the night of the first inst ice formed to the thickness of three inches in the mines. Mr Thibert predicts that there will be from 1500 to 2000 persons in the mines next season. The rush will commence about the first of March. A pack trail by present route which is generally needed, he says will cost a large sum. A good foot trail however can be opened over the same route for $1000

He cut his head open with an ax and cut himself with a knife until he fainted from loss of blood

The People of New York

[From the New York Times]

It is commonly said that New York is in respect of population substantially a foreign city that more than 600 000 of its denizens are of alien birth. The number of Irish citizens is usually given in round numbers at 400 000 of Germans at 200 000 of French at 25 000 of Italians Spaniards and Cubans at 15 000. This is an exaggeration and a great one. The native population exceeds the foreign by about 125 000. According to the census of 1870 there were 201 [illegible] Irish 24 112 English [illegible] Scotch 151 [illegible] Germans 826 French 2 91[illegible] Italians [illegible] Austrians [illegible] Poles 2178 Swiss 1[illegible] Hollanders 1151 Russians. This is a very large portion of foreigners certainly but nothing like the proportion generally supposed. There were then 3[illegible] colored persons who are said to have largely increased since. The women are reported [illegible] here being [illegible] years ago an excess over men of more than [illegible]. The [illegible] nese are much more numerous than they used to be. ### Remarks on the Conkling Machine—Arrogant and Offensive Methods and the Result

[From the New York Evening Post Nov [illegible]]

What is called Conklingism [illegible] rebuke. Conklingism [illegible] its exercise [illegible] has received a check from which [illegible] recover. Conkling [illegible] of the own mean [illegible] the election will [illegible] did not lose [illegible] not because of his [illegible] but notwithstanding [illegible] him carrying [illegible] his candidate for governor [illegible] poll list [illegible] defeat by a [illegible] cratic boss commanded by John Kelly who has no interest in Stalwartism with or without Conklingism and who has no interest in anything but his hold upon city power and public offices in this city. If the forty or fifty thousand votes cast for Kelly had been cast for Robinson or any other regular democratic candidate Cornell would have been defeated more decisively than any of his associates. We have just seen that Conklingism cannot control a majority of the voters of this state. Is it not about time that the chief engineer of the machine retired his hand from the lever? If Conkling is half as shrewd a politician as his friends report him to be he can scarcely help seeing that the present time is an excellent opportunity for him to go to the rear for a while and maintain a judicious reserve. If he does not see it it behooves other leaders not to be blind to the truth. Thousands of Republicans voted the regular Saratoga ticket under protest. Thousands more refused to vote at all not because they did not care for the success of their party but because they felt Conklingism to be intolerable to themselves and because they believed it to be injurious to the party if not indeed, destructive of it. If the ticket had been nominated which did not represent this arrogant offensive, unscrupulous and personal force—the closeness of the vote for lieutenant governor and the large legislative majorities of the republicans show that it would have been elected by a satisfactory majority over all other tickets. Even the managers of the machine must now see that it was folly to offend unnecessarily thousands of republican voters. We say unnecessarily because if Conkling had not chosen, at what he believed to be a safe time to assert insolently his questionable authority it would have been easy to nominate a ticket unobjectionable to any member of the party. The men who were wantonly and uselessly offended are strong enough to decide a close election in this state. They represent throughout the country a body of independent voters who are indispensable to republican success next year. They are stalwart enough for all practical purposes. The return of these men (of whom ex President Woolsey is a fair type) to the party, is one of the remarkable signs of the times. But while through force of circumstances they acquiesce in stalwartism they will not accept stalwartism with Conklingism attached to it

THE SOUTHERN WAR RECORDS

EX-CONFEDERATE GENERALS TURNING OVER THEIR OFFICIAL PAPERS TO GEN WRIGHT

[From the Washington Star Oct 22]

A reporter of the Star this morning dropped into the large building on G street corner of Twentieth where the official records of the late war are being compiled. Gen Marcus J Wright who is engaged in collecting the records of the confederate side was found in his office. He said "Very many of the most valuable papers of the confederate army were lost or destroyed in the general breakup and surrender. Our purpose is to get copies of all such papers, and thus make complete the official record of that side. Such of the papers as were preserved were obtained by the government, and I was appointed to procure duplicates of those that were lost"

But how do you get these duplicates?

From the officers of the confederate army. They preserved copies of every report every official paper they sent to Richmond and many of them kept copies of every official letter they wrote

Do the ex confederate officers give their files up to you?

Oh yes. As a general rule they give them to us but where any of them have papers they wish to keep they allow us to make copies of them and we return the originals. Gen Joseph E Johnston turned over to us his entire records containing all the reports of his subordinate officers. I have also all of Gen Pemberton's papers and that gives us a complete official record of the Vicksburg campaign as conducted on the confederate side"

Did they turn over their papers entirely to the government?

Yes. We preserve the papers and they are accessible at all times to those gentlemen, if they should wish to see them or make copies. They give them to us very willingly, as it relieves them of the trouble and care of keeping them and does not deprive them of any use they would want to make of the paper. We take every precaution against loss by fire or otherwise of the papers we got. We have printed copies of each one made, and eighteen or twenty copies are distributed around among as many of the departments and other government buildings so that in case of fire we are certain not to have them all destroyed"

Several these records are to be published by the government are they not?

Yes sir that is what we are collecting them for. The purpose of the government is to make up a complete official history of both armies of the civil war. The record for the year 1861 of both sides will be ready for publication about the time congress meets. The volume will be printed by the government as are other public documents and the usual number distributed among the departments and members of congress. Then the law provides that the work shall be stereotyped and sold to the public at the cost price of printing so that any one can obtain the work at comparatively little cost

Will the records of the two armies be printed separately?"

Yes separately and in consecutive volumes

Will the records be edited

No not at all simply compiled so as to present in the order in which they were issued the official reports letters orders etc of the war. The compilation is in charge of Col [illegible] Scott of the 3d artillery United States army and a man better qualified for the work could not have been select

Virginians complain about not having any labor system among the [illegible] race. Certain it is that the colored men have found [illegible] experience that the only reward they get [illegible] ex rebels is that after [illegible] them year after year they receive no wages and moreover their right to vote [illegible] as independent citizens is deprived. Two thirds of the white male population of Virginian towns may at any time be seen loafing around the streets waiting for prosperity to come to them instead of going into the fields like the industrious Pennsylvania farmer and trying to bring some of their lost wealth back into this devastated community

Jamestown lies in a southwest direction seven miles from Williamsburg, and the drive is one of the most desolate I ever took almost surpassing that of the Dismal Swamp. Although there are hundreds of large cleared fields they appear as so many deserts—not a vestige of cultivation meets the eye. Virginia farmers think that land should raise the crops for an unlimited number of years without putting one dollar's worth of fertilizer into the ground. Hence their present condition

THE WASHINGTON LEGISLATURE.

SPECIAL REPORT FOR THE OREGONIAN

OLYMPIA, Nov 11 1879

Both houses have passed a busy day though the work has been of such a nature as to make a better showing up in their respective journals than in a correspondent's letter—being devoted to the amendment and final disposition of laws already introduced. In the council some little discussion was indulged in regarding the amended gambling bill, Dr Day opposing the measure and Mr Dunbar favoring it. In the house a short but most animated discussion occurred regarding an amendment cutting down the pay of school superintendents from $5 to $3 per day. Speaker Stewart, Frary and Percival in their efforts to kill this amendment and to uphold our present system of free schools not only succeeded in arousing and claiming the attention of a tired and overworked house but have made reputations as earnest and eloquent advocates in the cause of education that will be remembered in the future. I can only send a synopsis of the debate

Guernsey—H B 160—An act to provide for the purchase of books for the territorial auditor and territorial treasurer

BILLS PASSED

Sub C B 24—An act to provide for the codification of the laws of Washington territory

C B 41—An act to amend an act in relation to notaries public

Mr Fardy moved to amend the act fixing the pay of school superintendents at $5 a day (while actually engaged as such) by inserting the words three dollars a day in lieu thereof

Mr Shaw favored the amendment. He declared himself opposed to the bill on the ground of its extravagance advocating the striking out of the entire pay of our school superintendents and claimed that but few of them did their duty which consisted of mounting upon the back of a cayuse and dismounting for a few moments at each school house. He claimed that this was the practice of the superintendent of Clarke county

Mr Duwar also claimed that they were paid too much for the amount of work performed

Speaker Stewart replied to Mr Shaw in vindication of the Clarke county superintendent and declared him to be a man most deeply interested in the cause of education. He hoped that every member of the assembly would give his support to this school bill that the cause of education was paramount that not only ourselves but our children's children were interested in this measure. He broadly intimated that this opposition was partisan in its character that the old Bourbon democracy had always opposed free education as it was fatal to their success and closed by saying that history teaches us that all great countries celebrated for the power and influence which they wielded over the destinies of the world were also celebrated for their schools and places of learning—and prayed that we would not forget the moral of the lesson so taught

Mr Frary fully corroborated the speaker in regard to encouraging our educational interests. To cut down the pay of officials in this department is to ring the death knell to all real future greatness. No matter how great our future may look to be wealth and power are soon frittered away unless sustained by educated minds. Ample salaries will alone secure the talent necessary for the discharge of so important a trust and one which so vitally interests us all. Without this you cannot keep up that high educational standard which all intelligent men and women so much desire. Where vice [illegible] all its features exists there ignorance will be found to reign supreme. Let us not by any short sighted measure of petty economy close our doors to that alone to which we must look for permanent prosperity and happiness

Mr Percival declared it would be impossible to secure the men that the welfare of our children demanded for these positions for the sum mentioned in the gentleman's from Mason (Fardy) amendment. He granted that hundreds might be found anxious to serve the country at the price stipulated but it would be found that those most anxious to serve were in reality detrimental to the interest they attempted to foster. We have this money at our disposal. Let us not, like the bad servant in the parable bury it but rather let us place it where we will reap rich interest in the future. The bill was referred

FERMENT IN THE SOUTHERN MIND

Among representative southern journals is the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution. It has not indeed a very great circulation—no southern journal has. But it is a very thorough representative of the spirit of southern ideas and southern politics. Startled by the general drift of northern sentiment as shown by the recent elections this journal of southern democracy frankly confesses that it is time to turn away from the past because it is clearly a necessity to do so. It insists that after an exhaustive canvass in which every citizen had opportunity of hearing the arguments on both sides of the issues which were deliberately invoked by the democrats in the extra session the democratic party has been signally beaten. We must therefore it says accept the result precisely as it stands and the people of the south will do themselves great injustice if they misinterpret the situation by endeavoring to explain why the result should have been otherwise or if they fall into an argument which proposes to prove that the result is not so bad as it appears to be.

There is a further gleam of sense in the confession which follows in the same journal that the scheme of the solid south may as well and indeed must be abandoned. The Georgia journal goes on to say "We have a lively interest in breaking down the sham barriers of sectionalism which the politicians of both sections have raised and which they are seeking to perpetuate." Again "We must begin to regard politics less from a sentimental and more from a business point of view. In short the southern people, apart from politics, must begin to look out for themselves and to provide for their own comfort. In what condition the northern democracy would be left should the solid south withdraw from the partnership is a suggestion which in time may awaken some anxiety in the northern democratic mind."

It is time, indeed to drop these sectional animosities and break down the barriers of sectionalism between the north and south. They were, in fact, fast disappearing till three or four years ago when the south started in on the solid sectional plan to capture the government and rule the country. State supremacy and the general doctrines of the rebellion were proclaimed anew, and the southern states, by suppressing political opposition through fraud and violence, became a political unit, gained complete control of congress by controlling the party caucuses and entertained no doubt that the northern members of the coalition would be able to bring strength enough to insure for the scheme full success. But this now is a lost hope and sagacious observers in the solid south begin to see that they may as well abandon the scheme. It would, however, be a mistake to imagine that it is to be done at once. A long cherished hope or purpose is not to be given up in a day. It will take time for the suggestions of the Georgia journal to work down among the masses of the southern people. So of course the south will still be solid till after the presidential election of next year.

But this leading organ of the confederate democracy in Georgia is ready to go further. Seeing the hopelessness of further effort on a line of action which has produced a solid north against a solid south, it starts the novel suggestion that the south might with one stroke get ahead of the whole controversy, simply by taking possession of Gen Grant and making him its candidate. It actually says it hears "well-defined rumors of a movement to make Grant the nominee of the south." It explains that "the object is, by nominating Grant and offering him support in the assumption of extraordinary powers, to utterly break down all barriers of sectionalism, and leave no room for prejudice and slander."

This can hardly be the voice of deliberation. It is rather that of spite and petulance with a touch of despair. But it shows that southern politicians are beginning to reflect that the political solidity of their section doesn't pay for the present and promises still less for the future. It will really be a fortunate day for them when they conclude that the sectional contention which they have so long nourished can never be to them a profitable thing.

With noticeable sagacity the New York Times says that the southern politicians who are thus talking of making Gen Grant their candidate, "evince a correct appreciation of the 'strong man' cry. A dictatorship is the result to which their assertions of authority tend. The talk current in Georgia and Alabama makes no concealment of the disposition to invest Gen. Grant with powers at present unknown in this country, in order that the stalwarts may be silenced and the south may have a friend at the head of the government." And the Times justly "recommends this version of the 'strong man' doctrine to the politicians (of the north) who have looked at it only from a narrow and selfish point of view."

TENDENCY TOWARDS ANOTHER WAR.

Of the trouble brewing between Great Britain and Russia in their rivalry for empire, the reports by telegraph give daily signs. Britain is advancing into the heart of Asia, has taken possession of Afghanistan and purposes to hold it. Moreover she is attending with unwonted solicitude to the affairs of Turkey, with the evident intention of taking advantage of the impending collapse of the Ottoman empire, which she is notifying the world cannot be much longer averted. Beaconsfield makes a speech at the banquet of the lord mayor of London in which he declares his belief that "the country (Great Britain) is endangered if the most extensive and wealthy empire in the world, with a perverse interpretation of its insular character, should turn an indifferent ear to the feelings and fortunes of continental Europe" adding that the celebrated Roman maxim, Imperium et Libertas is "a programme which would not disgrace a British minister." Russia on her side understands that all these minatory movements and preparations are intended for her alone. The British march into Afghan, with the conquest of the country, is simply a movement against the advancing frontier of Russia into Central Asia, while the interference of the British government in the affairs of the Turkish empire is only the manifestation of a purpose to be ahead of Russia in the next crisis of Turkish affairs and to turn the expected catastrophe to British account. The signs are that collision between these powers so jealous of each other cannot very long be postponed. Among large classes in England Russophobia is a positive madness. The present English government represents them fully and if it be sustained in the parliamentary elections, soon to take place the sequel will almost certainly be war—unless [illegible] by abatement of her pretensions and reversal of the policy of three centuries should decline it. And Russia will certainly hazard a war even in the present low state of her finances rather than see England established at Constantinople.

The relations of Russia and Great Britain in Central Asia are discussed from a Russian standpoint in a pamphlet recently published by Prof. [illegible] De M[illegible] [illegible] professor of international law at the university of St Petersburg. Published under circumstances which indicate that it has the sanction of the Russian government it possesses an authority which has secured for it marked [illegible] throughout Europe and particularly On the contrary its tone is remarkably pacific. The writer undertakes to establish the proposition that the interests of Russia and England in Central Asia are in the main concurrent. Instead of adopting the old notion that the two powers are compelled to be at swords points in Central Asia, his suggestion is that after England has annexed the greater part of Afghanistan and Russia has annexed the Turcoman country down to the Hindoo Koosh the two powers should then [illegible] shake hands across the roof of the world and proceed each in its own particular fashion in the grand work of carrying true civilization to the Central Asiatics. If England he argues should declare war against Russia and select Central Asia for the field of her military operations the native levies would form the bulk of the English army and the larger the number of natives in such army the more clearly would the Indian princes perceive the weakness of England's power. Thus an Anglo-Russian war in Asia if attended with British success would have the effect of developing a confidence in their own prowess among the subject races of India. It is precisely that confidence which has hitherto been wanting in the 200 000 000 inhabitants of British India. When that docile population shall have learned its own strength and the relative weakness of its masters the end of British rule in India will not be far off. Reverse the case and suppose a Russian attack upon England in India. What could Russia do with the 200 000 000 of inhabitants of that country? There are wise suggestions here. But the mind of each nation is haunted by deep suspicions that the other intends schemes of conquest. Hence when an English minister makes a warlike speech and a Russian official journal refers to English interference in Turkey with a remark that a collision between the powers would be more convenient for Russia there than in the depths of Central Asia, the significance of the attitude of the two powers towards each other can hardly be mistaken.

FORESTS OF ALASKA

Among interesting letters on Alaska recently written by John Muir, and published in the San Francisco Bulletin is one on the timber resources of the country. It gives information of interest which we have not met with elsewhere. The writer begins with the theory that Alaska is a very young country and finds that its forests are mostly set on solid rock which has but recently emerged from beneath the ice sheet. Probably it is a young country if we reckon only from the close of the last glacial period. But it contains plenty of fossil ivory and other organic remains of a pre-glacial age and therefore cannot be absolutely a young country. Be this, however, as it may, it is undoubted that it is only in times comparatively recent that the country has emerged from a glacial condition, and that, as Muir says, the existence of forests on so bare a surface is possible only in a wet and temperate climate such as Alaska now possesses. No doubt also if Alaska were given the climate of California her now evergreen islands and shores would be treeless, sun-beaten rocks. The bulk of Alaskan forests is made up of three species of evergreens. The most important of these as to timber is the yellow cedar. The wood is described as a pale yellow, close grained, tough durable and susceptible of good polish, and to these qualities is added a pleasant fragrance like that of sandal wood. The tree reaches a height of 150 feet, and a diameter of from three to five feet. The white spruce ranks next and is far more abundant than the first, while the third of the group is a beautiful hemlock spruce, also very abundant in particular localities. The common fir abounds, but it is a small tree seldom exceeding a height of 60 or 70 feet. The writer says that with the important exception of the yellow cedar, timber trees for every use, as good or better in quality abound in California Oregon Washington territory and British Columbia, while those sources of supply are also nearer the markets of the world. And it will only be after those are exhausted on the more accessible portions of the coast that these grand Alaska forests will to any considerable extent be made available. Seward expected Alaska to become the shipyard of the world. So it may a century hence. In the meantime this supply will keep. These Alaska forests are not threatened with fire, or any other destruction dependent on the agency of man. They are too wet to burn. The roots are set in a deep sponge of wet mosses, kept saturated by the abundant rains that fall throughout all seasons, so that running fires are impossible.

The report of the auditor of the treasury for the postoffice department for the fiscal year ended 30th June last, shows that the actual deficit in the cost of the postal service during the period was only $3 051 405, a remarkably small deficit, which is nearly $1,500,000 less than that of the preceding year. The total revenue of the postoffice department for the last fiscal year was $30,041,882, an increase of $764 465, and the total expenditures $33 073,437 a decrease of $1 091,647. In comparison with the preceding year of the last named amount $795 612 was saved by the law which changed the basis of postmasters' compensation from commission on stamps sold to commission on stamps cancelled, and the remainder by the reduction of compensation allowed railroads.

Production of petroleum is developing into a considerable interest in California. The present yield of that state is about two hundred barrels, equal to 8000 gallons crude or 5600 gallons refined oil a day. New discoveries have been made in Santa Cruz county which promise great results, and it is believed that the quantity attainable will be sufficient are long to supply not only the entire Pacific coast but China Japan and Australia. It is stated that within sixty days a refinery will be started in the vicinity of San Francisco with a capacity of 1000 barrels a day.

A few days ago work was resumed at Casa Grande Arizona, on the Southern Pacific railroad. Construction will be pushed with all speed and the road will cross the Rio Gande in Texas before the close of 1880.

There is a yearly increase of the catch of codfish in the waters of Alaska. Last year the receipts at San Francisco were 521 000 fish. This year 656 000 have been received and the fishing fleet is not yet all in.

The Walking Match.

The Pedestrienne's Song.

I

With a painful limp in her heels
With corns upon all of her toes
A woman tramps round a sawdust track
And thus gives vent to her woes
Walk walk walk!
Down and up and around,
With Donley close behind me
And Denman gaining ground

II

Walk, walk walk
When the day breaks overhead
And walk walk walk,
When the Chinamen go to bed
I'd rather be a wheel
On the engine of Number Four
Or even a peanut roasting machine
Than to keep up this thing much more

III

Though the roaster turns and turns
It ceases once in a while
And the wheels of the engine sometimes rest
When the boys go in to smile.
But Wiley and Florence stride
With VonBerg at Armory Hall
And if I give out they'll scalp the tin
That into my purse should fall

IV

Walk, walk, walk
My sorrows none can tell!
Oh happy the women who promenade
Or shop at the I X L.
When I think of that grand bazaar
My task seems doubly hard
And I long to handle their new silk plush
At ninety cents a yard

Tis true, one thought I have
To somewhat lighten my woes,
That on my swollen feet I wear
Their two bit Balbriggan hose—
That fancy silk clocked hose
At twenty five cents a pair—
Long fine, full finished and just the thing
For a tramper like me to wear

VI

Oh! when this week is over
And I have forgotten its pain,
I never will walk for glory
I never will walk for gain
There's but one thing I shall walk for
You want to know it?—well
I will only walk for bargains
To the mammoth I X L.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN ]

WASHINGTON Nov 13—1 30 A. M—For Pacific coast, partly cloudy weather with light rains north of San Francisco

CITY.

OLD FRICTION MATCHES —Mr Geo P H[illegible], of Hodge Davis & Co left at this office a box of ancient lucifer matches which were manufactured in 1834 at Springfield Mass by Lucius C Allen & Co There are eight bunches in the box each bunch contains thirteen rows, with eight matches to the row On the sides of the box are directions how to use the matches and to be sure to strike them on a hard surface when a light is required Mr Willis Phelps who gave these matches to Mr. Holman stated that a school meeting was held when he was quite a young man and during the time the meeting was in session, a Yankee peddler came along with a quantity of these newly manufactured matches which he offered to sell The question was discussed at some length in the meeting, and it was finally determined that those present did not wish to have any article introduced which could produce fire by being rubbed against a board This simple incident is told to merely show that even at that day the witchcraft superstition had still a hold in the public mind We tried some of the matches and notwithstanding the fact that they are 45 years old found them comparatively unimpaired by the long keeping.

Y M C A MEETINGS —An increased interest is manifest at these meetings The attendance was much larger last evening than heretofore. The meeting was led by Rev J A Cruzan, who spoke in his usual impressive style. To-night the meeting will be united at the hall, and the various churches will hold their regular prayer meetings taking the subject "The Secret of a Young Man's Success in Business On Friday evening the meeting will be led at the Y M C A hall by Rev. A. S Coats Subject A [illegible] Favored Man and his Terrible End

ONE OF OUR GIRLS —Portland young ladies seem to have taken an active part in the Annual Carnival at San Francisco The Call thus speaks of one Among the most active and energetic attaches of the refreshment booth were Miss Bessie Tracy and Miss Emily [illegible], who have worked with untiring diligence since the opening of the carnival, and have by their uniform courtesy coupled with the attraction of their personal charms, contributed in a great measure to the magnificent success of this booth ' Miss Tracy is well known in this city

MAIL BY EVENING EXPRESS —From the Salem Statesman it is learned that "arrangements have been made whereby we are to have additional mail facilities between here and Portland. Hereafter the Albany evening express train will carry the mail Mr [illegible], of the Chemeketa, has kindly consented to carry it from the train of evenings and Wm. Hunter will have charge of the mail between the depot and postoffice This arrangement will doubtless prove a great convenience to the people of Salem '

[illegible].—Sheriff J L Sperry of Umatilla county arrived here Tuesday evening having in custody two prisoners en route to Salem. These prisoners are R. E Wilson, sentenced to the penitentiary for three years for stealing cattle, and John Campbell three years for stealing a horse The prisoners were conveyed to Salem yesterday Sheriff Sperry will start home this morning

[illegible] LUCK.—Frank Mayo, who played a [illegible] engagement at New Market Theater [illegible] one year ago, was recently robbed of [illegible] money and valuables He was on his way to San Francisco to fill an engagement [illegible] to leave the cars at Elmira, New [illegible] money to carry him through, as [illegible] his wife's tickets were also stolen [illegible] $500

[illegible].—We are pleased to learn, that an opportunity will be given lovers of music to hear [illegible] Schwagerl, of Cleveland, Ohio [illegible] at the musical and elocutionary entertainment at the Congregational church, this evening. Mrs Cruzan will also sing and Cook's choir will furnish some excellent music. Prof. Chauvin's readings will be a rare treat.

THE ZOROYA —Advices from San Francisco to Messrs. Balfour, Guthrie & Co, of this city received yesterday regarding the condition of the Zoroya state that the only difficulty was that some of the loose wheat found its way into the pump wells and choked the pumps. No damage to the cargo is reported

THREE YEARS.—Judge Bellinger yesterday sentenced Charles Coburn to the penitentiary for the term of three years Coburn is the [illegible] soldier who entered a house [illegible] ago, on Fourth street, and was caught in the act of burglary He will be taken to Salem to-day.

[illegible].—Several weeks ago Mr P Selling, the well known merchant on First street, met with a very severe fall resulting in a dislocation of one of his shoulders We are pleased to note that he has so far recovered as to be able to appear again on the street.

Quarter Mile Walk Kept up with Unvarying Regularity—Amateur Contests at Both Halls

The crowds [illegible] with [illegible] walking match [illegible] like those which attended the Mechanics Fair in [illegible] Both halls were well filled last night [illegible] on sitting many ladies The [illegible] at Turn Hall [illegible] with ladies in the last [illegible] by two [illegible] at the most [illegible]

At 2 P M [illegible] and [illegible] Fitzgerald commenced [illegible] At 8 [illegible] Sherman [illegible] walk which she [illegible] Miss Belle Dinsey [illegible] walked [illegible] and [illegible] Fitzgerald four miles in 46

At [illegible] Emmett Fitzgerald [illegible] 121 amid great applause Miss Ella Sherman and A [illegible] Wiley kept up their quarter miles with the same regularity and cheerfulness that has characterized them since the commencement of their walk.

This afternoon exhibition walks will be given by Fitzgerald and Misses Sherman [illegible] Wiley [illegible] At 8 [illegible] Miss Sherman and Mr C B St[illegible] [illegible] twenty mile go-as-you-please [illegible] Saturday night [illegible] Thompson [illegible] an [illegible] walking [illegible] W T [illegible] of San Francisco [illegible] of one mile

AT [illegible] HALL

At Armory Hall last evening the [illegible] attraction was the walking match previously announced between Miss Bertha Von Berg and Wm Dugan an amateur walker of this city Promptly at 8 o'clock Capt. Wm Hart started the contestants On the start Miss Von Berg fell in making a turn and ruptured a small blood vessel in her right foot and after walking a mile and a quarter was compelled to retire from the track for treatment Her contestant kept up his walk steadily until the completion of the 10 miles which he accomplished in [illegible] hours 4 minutes 48 seconds The accident to Miss Von Berg was really unfortunate for that lady who however will be again on the track in a two mile contest with the same person on Saturday evening next for the same purse—$50 a side Dugan gave such a display of his abilities as a walkist that he really surprised his own admirers The following is his record in the match

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1st mile | 11 05 | 6th mile | 12.22 |
| 2d mile | 12 3[illegible] | 7th mile | 1 54 |
| 3d mile | 13 0[illegible] | 8th mile | 14 10 |
| 4th mile | 11 38 | 9th mile | 13 58 |
| 5th mile | 12.34 | 10th mile | 10 30 |

Besides the above walking contest there was a mile race between Johnny Burke and Abe Tichenor Both started at 40 and Burke after a game struggle was declared winner in 5 [illegible]

Of the lady contestants Miss Florence still walks, despite the rumors that have been set afloat that she had caved in Tuesday night was the first night that she had obtained any sleep—she having slept on the track for a period of 3¼ hours and yesterday and this morning feels in better spirits than she has since the beginning of her task

Miss Wiley is still in good condition, and walks her quarters without in the least diminishing her average She has slept on the track regularly and shows every sign of completing the 3000 quarters. Both ladies are showing wonderful powers of endurance and are possessed of an amount of grit, coupled with strong determination which is truly miraculous

This evening there will be two exhibition walks Wm Dugan will walk five miles against time and Geo W Lee Miss Wiley's trainer will walk 10 miles against the time made by Dugan

AMUSEMENTS

LAST PERFORMANCE OF PINAFORE — The final performance of H M S Pinafore was given at New Market Theater last evening to a good audience Throughout the performance was most excellent with one very noticeable and very excuseless exception The disposition evinced by several of the principals to slouch through the allotted parts slurring important details and indulging in illtimed levity is deserving of severe censure. Actors and singers ought not to overlook one important fact—that the audience has rights which ought in all decency to be respected. No reasonable apology can be offered for the unprofessional conduct of some of the principals last evening If actors cannot observe the fundamental and legitimate proprieties of the stage they should abandon the profession and the sooner the better These remarks do not apply to the members of the chorus orchestra or even to all the principals. The characters of ' Josephine ' Capt. Corcoran ' and Ralph Rackstraw as delineated by the individuals to whom the parts were entrusted were mere caricatures at times Levity in most of the sentimental scenes usurped the place of pathos. It is a matter to be regretted that so excellent a performance should have been marred by such causeless objections

This morning the company will start for Salem where Pinafore will be given for one night only

John Maguire's Pinafore company play to night at Salem and also on Friday night giving Pocahontas and O Callaghan on His Last Legs with John Maguire in the title role. On Saturday they return and give one more performance of Pinafore at the matinee and a great double bill on Saturday night.

THE SEA'S ANSWER.

The pale moon rushed along the stormy sky,
Now hid, now seen, like some belated bark,
That drives among the breakers aimlessly,
Their white crests gleaming silver through the dark.
Pale as the moon, beneath the light-house cowered,
The silent watcher on the great stone pier,
She saw how black the gathering cloud wrack lowered,
She heard the gale's hoarse warning muttering near;
She felt the kindred tumult in her breast,
With Nature's angry mood was prompt to blend
Yet the sea answered stilling her unrest,
"The hardest hap comes ever to the end."

Though the great waves roll thundering to the shore,
And o'er the reef the cruel surf clouds foam,
Though fierce and high the crashing breakers roar,
Between the weary fisherman and home;
Calm to its depths the tide will ebb at night,
The waves creep whispering backward from the Scar,
And as the cottage hearth shows welcome light,
The laden cobe leaps the harbor bar,
Ears that can hear, hearts that can understand,
Know Ocean tells us, like a staunch old friend,
"God holds the future in His loving hand,
The hardest hap comes ever to the end."

The red roofed houses plied beneath the Head
In silent separate lights began to shine,
The struggling moon her tearful radiance shed
On the grand beauty of the ruined shrine;
From the quay side, laugh, snatch of song, and call,
Came fitful to the pier upon the breeze,
And regular as pulses rise and fall,
Boomed the long echo of the breaking seas.
And still the watcher on the great stone pier
Lingered above the eternal waves to bend,
Taking their answer home to hush and cheer,
"The hardest hap comes over to an end."

—All the Year Round.

BESIDE A LITTLE GRAVE.

"Call no one happy till he dies," the old
Athenian saying, has the stamp of truth;
And oh! how many a bright and glowing youth,
Lit with the morning's sunshine and its gold,
As years swept on has darkened with the mould
Of vice and bitterness of sin-brought care!
How many a fond and tearful mother's prayer
Had been unuttered if she could have told
His future life whom she sought God to spare!
Nay, rather she had prayed he should lie cold
In all the purity of childhood drest;
And standing o'er my first-born's little grave
I can but humbly murmur God knew best,
Stainless He took the precious flower He gave.

THE FATE OF A LETTER.

[From a Philadelphia Paper.]

"I'm just making my report to the department at Washington concerning the fate of a registered letter," remarked Special Agent Barrett, of the Philadelphia postoffice yesterday, as he sat at his desk buried in a pile of official documents. "Sometimes parties who complain of having a letter lost think there is too much of that quantity known as 'red tape' to be disposed of in our endeavors to find a missing letter, but we must find all the information, although sometimes we trace out our case on a very meager start.

"Here is a good illustration. In a little town, about twelve miles out of the city—I will give you my reason for not stating any names when I am done with the story—there lives an old gentleman who has two sons living in a town out in Kansas. One of them has recently purchased some property out there in which the father is also interested, intending soon to go out there himself. About two months ago the father wanted to send fifty dollars to his son to pay the interest coming due on a mortgage, and so he went to the postoffice, inclosed the sum in a registered letter, took his receipt for it and went home happy, thinking, I presume, that that matter was attended to. The letter was inclosed in what we call 'a jacket' or an extra envelope supplied by the government, was put into a pouch containing nothing but registered letters, and having a peculiar lock, indeed, so peculiar that there are but six postoffices in the United States that have a key that will unlock it. One of these offices is at St. Louis, to which place the letter was first sent, and from there forwarded to its destination in Kansas. The arrival of the mail in one of those little western towns is an event with them, and when it is about time for it to arrive the good country people congregate in the postoffice to ascertain if anybody from the east has remembered them. The son was expecting this letter, and of course was in the office when the postmaster opened his mail. "Here's a letter for you, Mr. Smith, and here's one for you, Mr. Jones, and another for Mr. Brown," said the postmaster, and finally, coming in contact with the registered letter, announced the fact to the waiting son, congratulating him on its contents. The son attempted to tear open the letter, but could not because the letter and envelope were stuck together. "Guess the old gentleman didn't mean the money should jump out for the want of mucilage," remarked the son, as he drew his knife from his pocket and began to cut off the covering. It was fearfully glued together, but at last he got at enough of it to read "Inclosed please find $50," but he failed to find a cent. The letter had been rifled. Who did it. Certainly not the postmaster at that end of the line, for he took the letter from the pouch and delivered it directly to the person to whom it was addressed. An investigation showed that the letter had been immediately forwarded from St. Louis to its destination, and the proper receipts given for it whenever it passed from the hands of one agent to another. It could not have been between this city and St. Louis, for no one had a key to the pouch, and no one could have picked the lock. So the matter was narrowed down to the postoffice here and the one from which it was mailed. The date of its receipt by the postal agent from the country office was on the envelope, and the time of its starting for St. Louis."

Such was the condition of affairs when Special Agent Barrett received the papers from Washington and entered upon his investigation of the case. Not desiring to be seen in the town where the letter was mailed, fearing it would arouse suspicion if the guilty party was located there, Mr. Barrett addressed a letter to the writer requesting him to come to Philadelphia, and the writer came.

"When did you mail that letter?" was the first inquiry.

"On the 30th of May," responded the writer.

"And at what hour?" continued the questioner.

"A little before four o'clock," was the response.

"Sure of that?" asked the special agent.

"Yes; I could swear to it," was the positive reply.

"What kind of a man is the postmaster out there?"

"Oh, there was never an honester man lived; he didn't have anything to do with it."

"No; I don't believe he did," was the assuring response of the interlocutor, "but tell me, who is in the office with him?"

"Well, he has a brother-in-law there, who attends to the office in his absence."

"Yes; now, can you tell me what kind of character he bears?"

"Well, I can't say much about him," responded the writer of the letter, hesitatingly; "I've heard some things, but I don't know anything myself, about his having come there from the south, and that's all I can tell you, except I heard, now I come to think of it, that he was once in a store somewhere in Jersey; I can't tell where now, but I can find out and let you know," added the man, not knowing what possible good could be gained by the information, but hoping that it might be after all valuable.

The place at which the brother-in-law of the postmaster had worked in Jersey was ascertained and the information imparted to Mr. Barrett. The next step taken by the special agent was, using his own language, "to go for" the postal agent by asking him to explain how it was that a letter received by him at six o'clock one day did not reach the office in Philadelphia until the next evening. The agent declared that no such state of facts existed.

"Here's a registered letter, mailed before 4 o'clock on the 30th of May, which was Friday, and did not reach Philadelphia until Saturday night. How is that?" inquired Mr. Barrett.

"Nothing of the kind," replied the train agent; "I received that letter on my down trip on Saturday morning, and brought it up with me on Saturday evening," he added with emphasis.

"From whom did you receive it?"

"From the assistant postmaster at ——. He gave it to me himself, and I receipted to him for it on Saturday morning. More than this, I often get letters that were put into the office the day before on my down trip, because he says he don't want to take the trouble of bringing them to the cars in the evening," was the emphatic explanation of the train agent.

Armed with these facts and such other information as he had gained from the slight clue that the brother-in-law "had worked somewhere in Jersey," the special agent paid the postmaster of the country office a visit. In a little time he was closeted with him in a private room, much to the discomfiture of the young brother-in-law, who remarked just as the door was being closed in his face, which was livid with fear, "Remember how it was about that check."

"What check? What does he mean?" inquired Mr. Barrett of the postmaster, to which the latter replied. "Oh, that's an old matter that has nothing whatever to do with this case."

"Yes, but why should he have made that remark now? What is the necessity to remember about any check? How does he know what I want of you?" were the inquiries with which the postmaster was plied.

"Now, I must tell you," continued Mr. Barrett, "that I very much fear that you are in for the payment of $50 that were mailed in a registered letter from this office."

"Oh, it couldn't have been lost here, for I put the letter in an official envelope and locked it up in my desk, and—"

"Your brother-in-law has a key to that desk?" inquired Mr. Barrett, interrupting the speaker.

"Yes, I believe he has," acknowledged the postmaster.

"And now I tell you he is a thief," continued the special agent.

"Mr. Barrett, he is my brother-in-law," interposed the postmaster.

"Yes, I know he is, and I'm sorry for you, and I am sorry for his sister. Now, do you know anything about him? Do you know where he came from when he came to you?" were questions put in rapid succession by the interviewer.

The postmaster only knew that his brother-in-law came to his house from South Carolina, that he had worked in New Jersey, and was subsequently in Philadelphia, and from there went south.

"Yes," explained Mr. Barrett, "he did go to South Carolina from Philadelphia. His stay in Philadelphia was exceedingly brief. He had robbed his employer in Gloucester, where he had been working, of $319 in cash; he then hired a livery team and went to Philadelphia, and left the team at a stable, and the owners got it back a week afterward only by advertising for it. Then the officers of the law got on his trail, and followed him to South Carolina, where an old uncle sold his little farm, all the property he owned, to raise the money to refund it to his nephew's employer and keep the rascal out of prison. Then he came up here to live with you. The day that letter was mailed at this office you left it about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and after supper went to your lodge, and did not see the inside of the office again until next day."

After delivering a lecture to the country official on his neglect of duty in failing to put the letter on the cars the day it was mailed at his office, instead of leaving it there over night for the dishonest relative to rob at his leisure, Special Agent Barrett left him, the postmaster promising to call on Mr. Barrett yesterday.

"Instead of waiting until Friday," said Mr. Barrett, "he called on me yesterday and planked down the $50; and although he is a good Presbyterian elder, he actually said 'damn me.' Yes, sir; he said 'damn me, if I get hold of that rascally brother-in-law of mine I'll shoot him.' He found out that the thief had bought a sewing machine in this city with $35 of the stolen money, and I told him where he had bought it."

"So you see the date and hour of mailing a letter forms an important item in tracing it up, if any information is wanted concerning it."

WEDNESDAY EVENING, Nov. 12.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Consols—97⅞ money.

U. S. bonds—5s, 5⅝; 4½s, 9⅞; 4s, 6⅝.

There is no particular stringency in the local money market, the funds at hand being amply sufficient to meet the wants of the trade, which, for the week now half past, shows a slight falling off, more attributable to the exceedingly bad weather than to other causes.

The wheat traffic, as affected by the weather in this country, would manifest some decline in the volume of the movement, but the markets abroad show such a tendency that it is hard for buyers or sellers to convince themselves of the safety of any particular course. Those who have ships under charter at the rates prevailing six weeks or two months ago, can afford to pay full quoted figures for wheat, but under the present asking price for ships, the Liverpool market would not justify even $1 90. There are no sellers to-day at this figure, the local quotations for good to choice shipping being $1 92½@1 95. The situation, however, is such that both buyers and sellers are indifferent operators, except in the cases of those who are so fortunate as to have engaged vessels some time ago. In the present condition of the wheat market abroad, A, who has no vessels except those he may take up at rates now current, cannot compete with B, who effected charters a few weeks ago, when tonnage was so much lower. This has the effect to suppress competition, and hence makes the market a little dull just at this time.

Other than wheat, domestic products are coming forward quite freely, with a fair demand for all seasonable commodities, at firmer rates. Trade generally in this line manifests quite as much activity as usual at this time of the year.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN

The Most Successful Physician on the Pacific Coast.

IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL

CHRONIC AND DIFFICULT DISEASES.

HAS RETURNED AFTER AN EXTENSIVE tour of the Eastern States, for the past four months. The Doctor while absent visited all the principal Medical institutions in the large cities of the United States, and comes back with all the modern methods, instruments and appliances known to the most scientific men in the profession. The Doctor has also brought charts and manikins to illustrate his lecture.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN has been fifteen years lecturing on the Laws of Life and Health. In his private and public lectures he has taught men and women the true system of life, how to be healthy and happy if they would only be guided by his wise counsel. But all cannot hear his delightful and instructive lectures, nor can he tell everything necessary for suffering humanity to know from the public rostrum before a promiscuous audience. There remains much to be learned from him as his experience extends over broad fields of active professional life. This knowledge so necessary to the welfare of the sufferer can only be gleaned by private Professional Consultation at his office.

His experience in the various parts of Europe and America give him such opportunities of learning the delicate diseases which the human family are prone to, their mode of treatment and permanent cure, as no other physician on the Pacific Coast can claim. He has not only treated these diseases most successfully, but has made them a life study, as a few moments' consultation will prove.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

FOLLIES OF YOUTH,

Such as SPERMATORRHEA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS, or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two-thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

IT IS TRUE

That persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organization broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Those who call in time upon DR. PAUL M. BRENAN need have no fear but what he will restore them to perfect health and vigor, make their body pure and their mind content, if they will only follow his advice and treatment.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure without fail. No Quack Nostrums used; no slop treatment; no false promises.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. All fine Surgical Operations performed.
